

INDY/LIFE

Queen Elizabeth II attends a reception for winners of The Queen's Awards for Enterprise, at Buckingham Palace on July 11, 2017
(Getty Images)

A photograph of Queen Elizabeth II, an elderly woman with short, styled white hair, wearing a light green floral patterned dress and a multi-strand pearl necklace. She is holding a flute glass of sparkling wine to her lips and drinking. The background is blurred, showing other people in a formal setting.

QUEEN LAUNCHES HER OWN £15 PER GLASS PROSECCO

The monarch's celebratory bubbly is 'flying off the shelves', according to palace staffer

The Queen has launched her own brand of Christmas prosecco that has been reportedly “flying off the shelves” despite its hefty price tag.

The 200ml bottles, which is enough to fill one glass, cost £15 a pop and are available in the shop on Her Majesty’s Royal Sandringham estate.

The wee bottles feature a festive label decorated with a robin, holly and fir trees, and are filled with 11 per cent extra dry prosecco produced in Italy.